Nurse Becomes Bride

Temple Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Rosemarie West and Timothy Lee Barnes at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

The Rev. Clay Warf officiated and musicians were Mrs. Shirley Unangst and Miss Vangie Horton.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rose Marie L. West of 1000 N. Duke St. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Lee Barnes of 61 Chalice St. are parents of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her mother and her uncle, Richard Unangst, the bride wore a gown of satin organza trimmed with Chantilly lace. Her veil of illusion was attached to a Juliet cap accented with matching lace. She carried roses and gypsophila on a Bible.

Miss Susan Gayle West of Durham was her sister's maid of honor. Attendants were Mrs. Tricia Bell, Miss Vickie Knight and Miss Martha Gordon.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Gregg Barnes, Doug Bell, Danny Eason, Ken Barnes and Brad Barnes.

A reception was held at the church hall.

The bride graduated from Watts Hospital School of Professional Nursing. She will be employed by Forsyth County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a senior at Wake Forest University.

The couple will live in Winston-Salem.

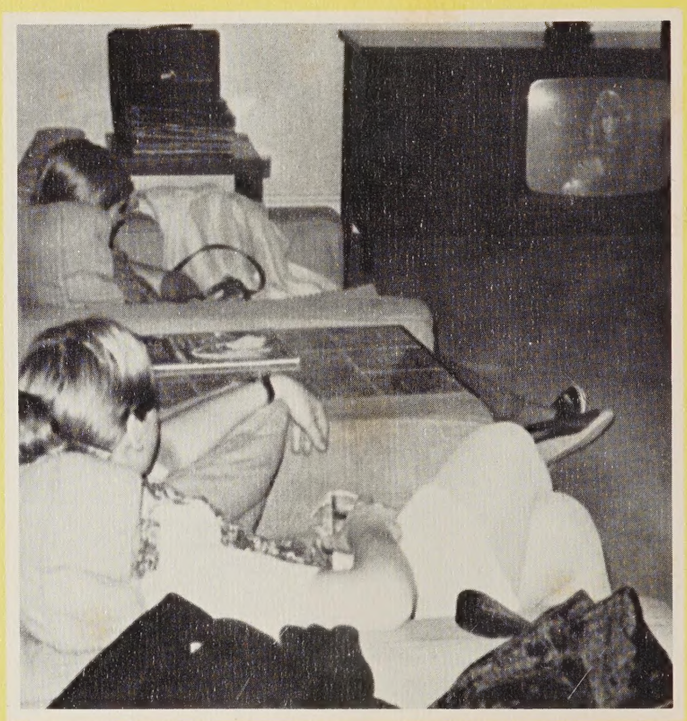
Watts Hospital School of Nursing

Durham, N.C. 27705

1975-76

At one year of age Mary Yonts sucks her finger as she poses for the camera.

During lunch hour, the TV room is full of people watching the soaps, especially The Young and the Restless.



Jewel Harrell, Terri Duke, Robin Hayes and Troy Ellis take time out from their hectic schedule to clown around.

While Cindy Rainey exercises with her hula hoop, Mary Yonts, Donna Branch and Peggy West look on.

The Young and the Restless

Gone, dreams of the past, gone with a love that moved too fast.
Gone, bright shiny days, gone in a young and restless haze.
Why did we love then run away?
So little time, so much left to say,
and now it's gone.

Young and restless friend, you'll never pass this way again.
So drink the summer wine, reach for the stars while you have time.
Your restless dreams will lead the way;
So dream your dreams and live for each day while you are young.

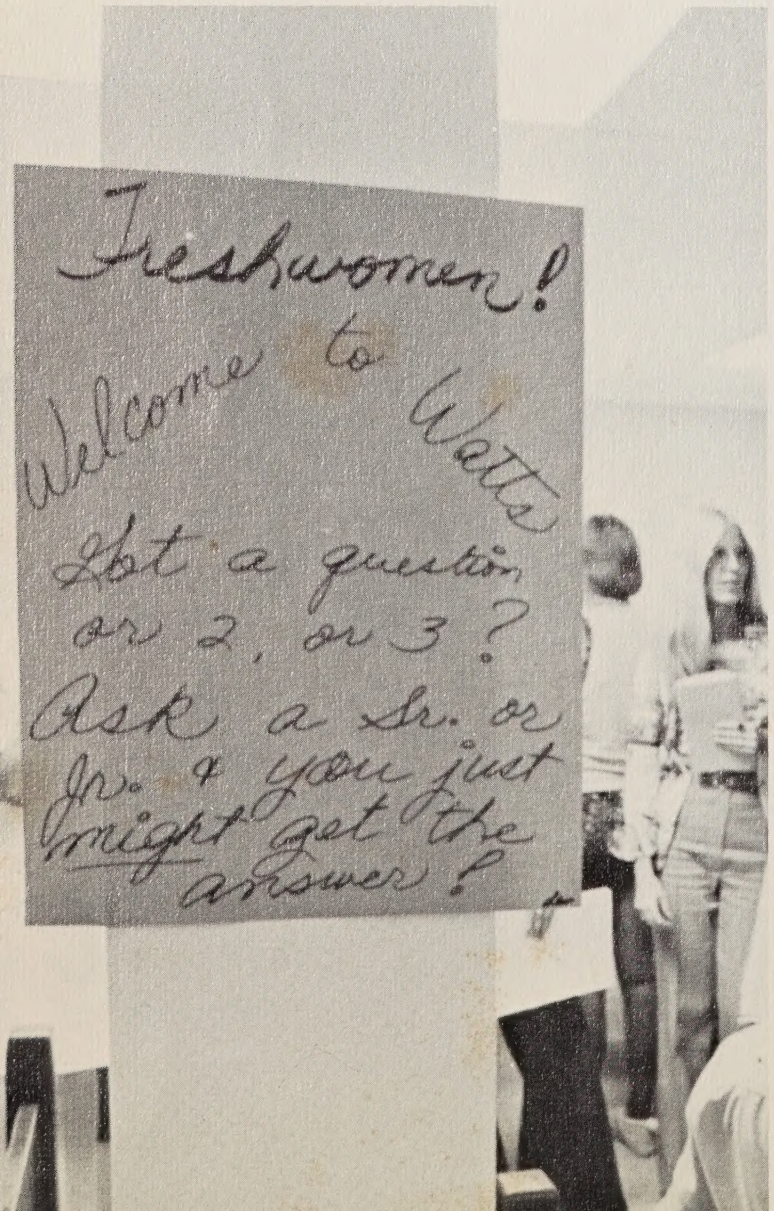
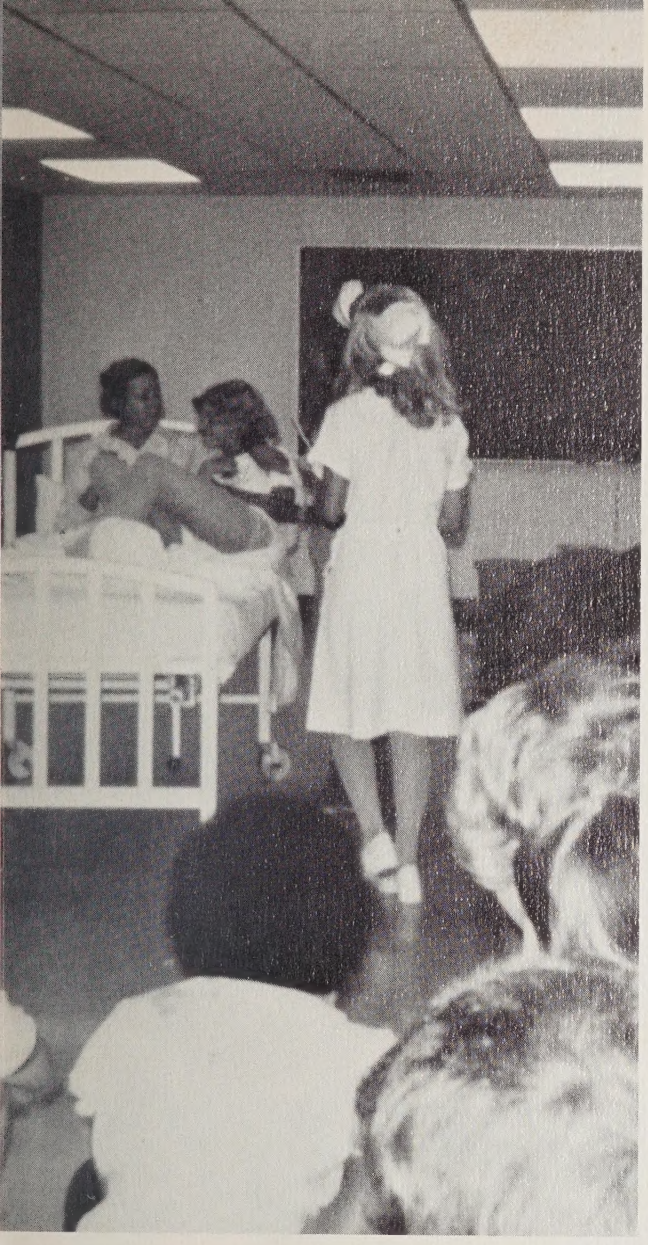
Gone, dreams of the past, gone with a love that moved too fast. Gone, bright shiny days, gone in a young and restless haze.

When we all come in we have dreams of becoming replicas of Ms. Nightingale. Soon we learned that there was no way to be the perfect nurse, so we had to learn to be the best we could be. After the skits of that first week gave an idea of what was to come, one could hear small crys of "Mama where are you?" throughout the halls.

Upon arrival for registration of the freshmen, they were greeted with this poster.



Some of the students are seen here, watching the skits being performed.

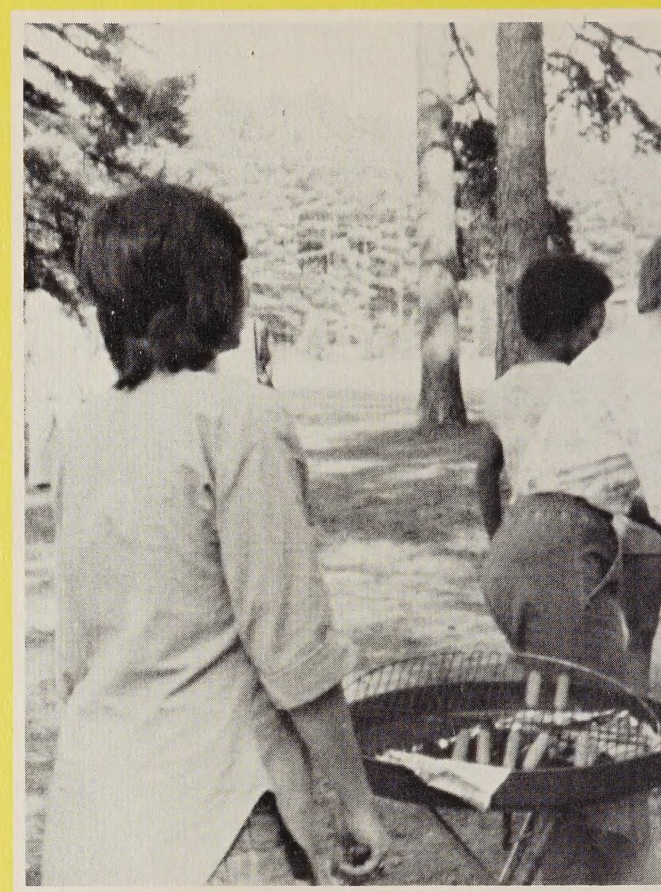


A skit about a post-partum mother receiving her baby for the first time is acted out for us.

Instructors, Mrs. Linda Delbridge, Mrs. Carolyn McCain, Mrs. Jackie Fuller and recruiter, Mrs. Pam Aldridge entertain us with a skit.

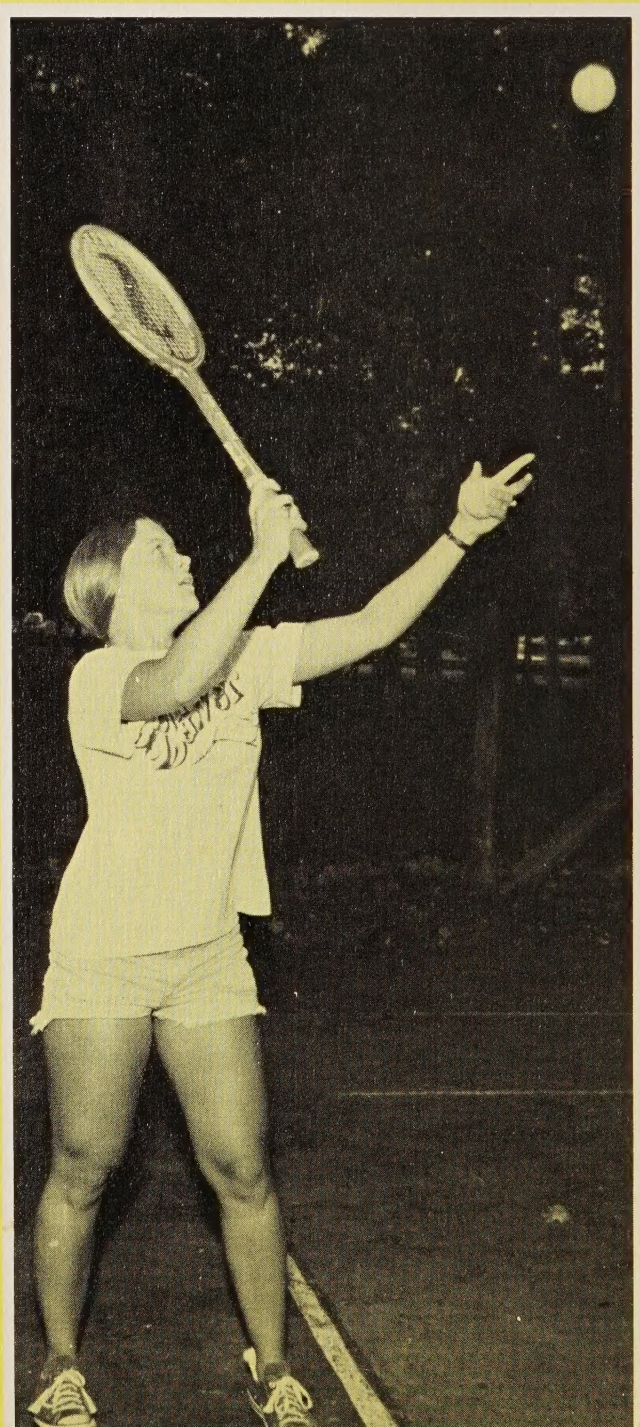
Getting moved into the dorm can be a big hassle, but with everyone pitching in to help it makes it a little easier.

Finding time to lounge around the pool was often rare, but Jenny Brewer, Sarah O'Connor, Pam Dickens and Dottie Jo Miller seem to have found time.



Commuters and their families made use of the pool, as seen here with Judy Wagoner, Glenda George, Lana Collins and their families.

During tennis lessons, Ruthie Wiseman practices her serve.



Why did we love then run away? So little time, so much left to say, and now it's gone.

After we've been here a while we might go back home to look up the old crowd only to find that things are no longer the same. We somehow managed to set aside 17 or 18 years of our lives only to start another. Only this time we have just three years to do it in. Scanning the dorm, cookouts, and poolside for prospective friends becomes a frequent pastime.

At our cook-out at Bennett Place, Mrs. Hilda Holloway inspects the cooking done by the Juniors.

Springing from the diving board Dottie Jo Miller attempts to do a flip while June Lane looks on.

Volleyball is a good game to work up appetites while waiting for the food to get done.

Young, and restless friend, you'll never pass this way again.

So drink the summer wine, reach for the stars while you have time.

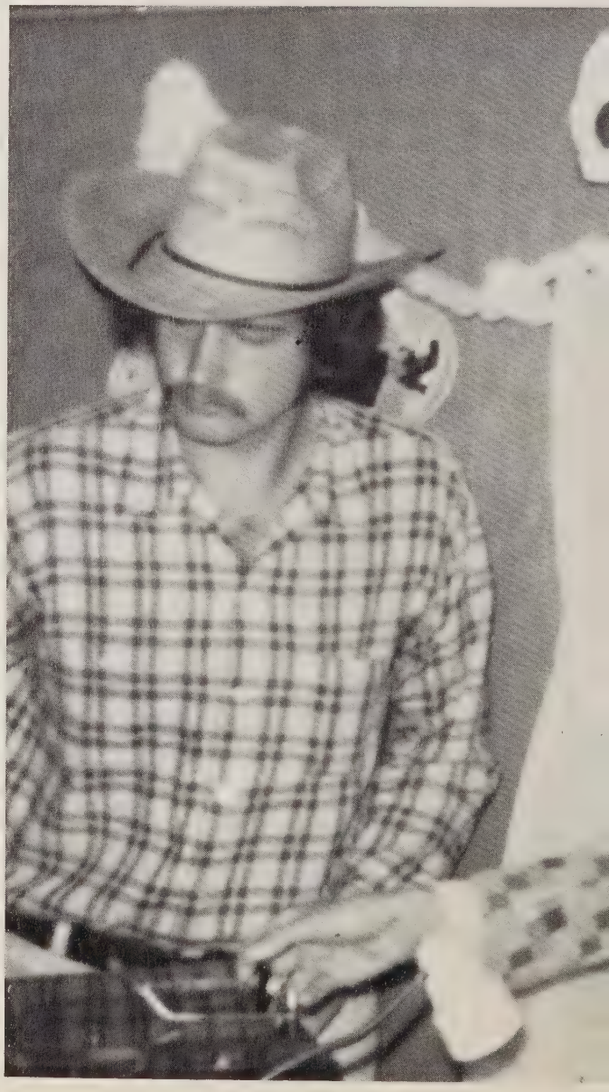
Three years ends up being a very short time. In this time we must learn to take on the total responsibility for ourselves. Many took advantage of fraternity parties at area universities, our own mixers, and late nights sitting in the dorm just talking.

Dressed as a pumpkin, Julia Upchurch gets a refill.

Luanne Mahannah and date seem to be enjoying the mixer.



The mixer seems to be a good place for a lot of different people to get together.

Groovin' to the music, Mrs. Pam Aldridge and friend do the Bump.

Freshman, Sherry Martin is really decked out for the mixer as most freshmen did.

Delta Tau Delta brothers help out at the mixer. Bill Pool entertains us with his disc jockey routine.

Your restless dreams will lead the way;

Now that our dream of getting here has come true, we must dream again so that we will have goals to reach. And after each dream becomes a reality, dream again. We don't have forever, only today with no guarantee of tomorrow. So with a little luck and a lot of work maybe we will reach our final goal.

As part of their work Joan Kozel and Jeneverette Howard are checking the Code 5 cart.

So dream your dreams and live for each day while you are young.

Raggedy Ann is surrounded by all of her treasures that she has collected over the 3 years that she's been here.

Getting together with friends and talking is the present form of entertainment, as seen here with Nina Vincent, Kay Parker, and Clara Butler.

A look into the past finds Bonnie Gail Stubbs and her brother taking time out to pose after a morning of play.

ACTIVITIES AND

Rose West, Sherry Anderson, Joy Hill, and Jewell Harrell gather around Mrs. Thomas to say their good-byes.

Mrs. Isabelle Jones Thomas or "Izzie" as she was known to most of us here, came to work for Watts at the Staff House on Broad Street in June 1945. At that time she was working part-time as she had some young children at home that also needed her care. She worked at the Staff House until 1968 when it was closed. From there she came to Wyche House until her retirement in August 1975. She had worked 30 years for Watts. Izzie meant a lot to many students past and present. She shared a lot of memories with us and as she retired a small part of our memories went with her.

Unwrapping her gift, Mrs. Isabelle Thomas seems quite pleased with the robe.

A nice group picture!

STUDENT LIFE

During the lunch hour, we find Constance Hall studying and watching a soap opera both at the same time, if it's possible.

While Shelly Singer works hard on her embroidering, nnie Gail Stubbs enjoys TAB as she watches sely.

After a long morning in class, Pam Whitlow and Joyce Ball seem ready for lunch.

Beginning to water her plant, Debra Chrismon is interrupted by the camera.

CELEBRATION OF

Watts Hospital donated by George Washington Watts opened its doors to the public on February 20, 1895. This first hospital was located on West Main Street, but by 1909 this facility was inadequate to meet the demands of the public, so George Watts had the present hospital known as Watts built.

The first graduate from Watts School of Nursing, Ethel Clay, constituted the entire graduating class in 1897. Admission requirements into the school had not been established and the most qualified high school applicants were selected. The training program for students was increased from two years to three years in 1908 while Mary Wyche was the administrator of the hospital and the school. The eight-hour duty for student nurses was instituted in 1914. After working eight hours the students then went to class. Most of the nursing was done by students wearing yards and yards of petticoats, skirts, leg-o-mutton sleeves with tight-fitting cuffs, aprons with bibs and high-top shoes so the ankles could not be seen. The teaching staff consisted of the superintendent of nurses, her assistant, if she had one, and the staff doctors. It was not until 1926 that the first full-time instructor was employed. Because of the lack of graduate nurses, advanced student nurses were assigned special duty with a patient and the hospital was responsible for their work. This cost the patient less than for a graduate nurse. In 1929 nursing students worked approximately 70-80 hours a week. The freshmen and junior students were paid a stipend of $10 a month and the seniors received $15 a month. However, in 1931 during the Depression these payments were discontinued. It was at this time that Senior students served as head nurses until 1932 when the first Watts graduate staff nurses were hired. These nurses earned $25 a month plus room and board, and they worked 56 hours a week, relieving students in the pharmacy, on ambulance call, and scrubbing in the Operating Room and Delivery Room. The hours of work were reduced to 48 hours by 1943 and it was not until March 1, 1953 that the 40 hour work week was instituted.

There have been many changes in the school over the years. In 1973 the school had its first male graduate. The first married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Kornegay, graduated in 1974. To date the school has had 1,759 graduates. The enrollment of students as of August 1975 is 184 with 18 full-time faculty, one librarian, one recruiter and one director. Freshmen students attend North Carolina Central University for the basic science courses and English. The juniors average about 16-20 hours a week in clinical and the seniors average 20-24 hours a week. The clinical experience for the freshmen averages 4-8 hours per week.

As of June 22, 1971 Watts Hospital joined the Durham County Hospital Corporation, which was formed for a consolidated health program for the citizens of Durham. Watts Hospital is to be phased out as an acute care hospital and by 1976 Durham County General Hospital will take over this service.

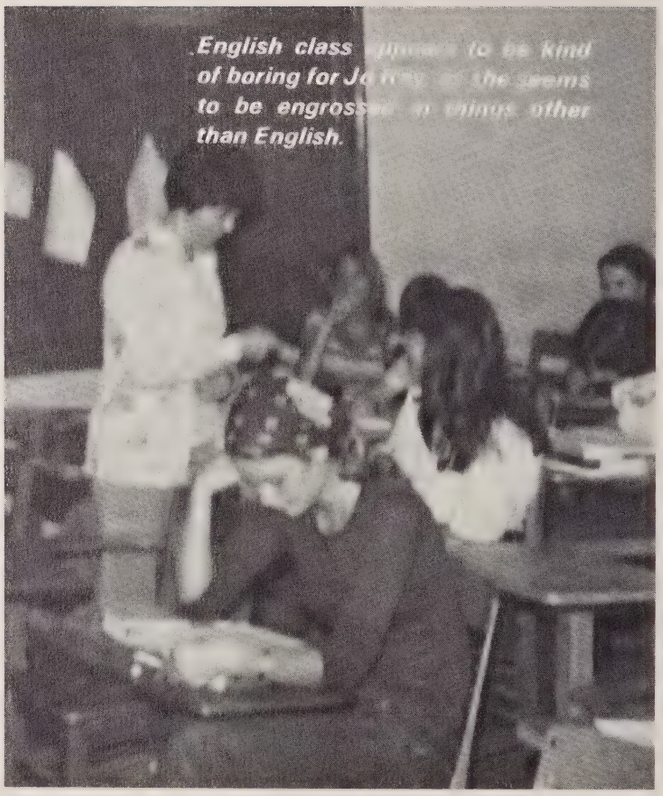
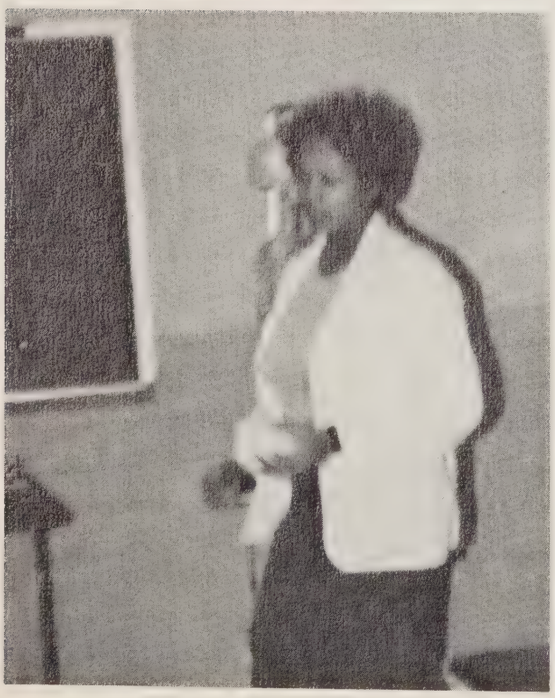
MAN CRASHES THRU CEILING AT NCCU



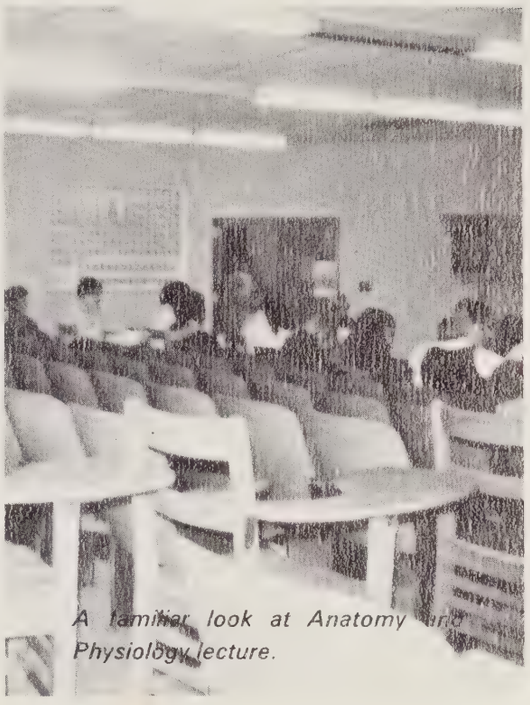
Have you ever been sitting in class and seen two feet come crashing through the ceiling? If not, the Freshmen can give you the first hand story. There we were listening to Dr. Mueller give the most interesting lecture of the year when suddenly there was a loud crash! Students scattered with screams and laughter. We look up at the ceiling and all we see are two legs dangling. "What has happened?" you may ask. An electrician has fallen through the ceiling. Dr. Mueller, shaking nervously, immediately dismisses class, the electrician unharmed pulls himself back up through the ceiling and we all continue with our usual day at North Carolina Central.

Upon entering the room, Miss Fitch is ready to start anatomy lab.

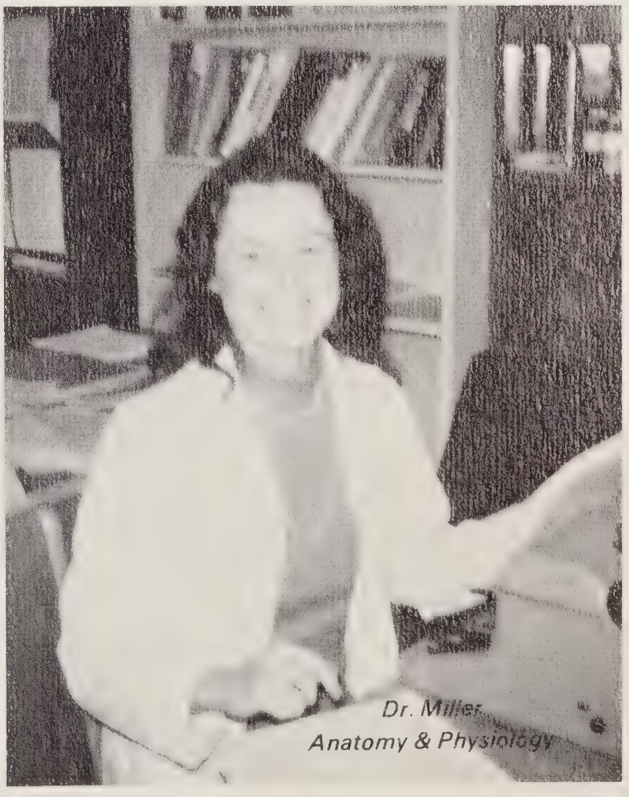


Waiting to cross the street to go to class can be a real hassle at times when the traffic is really heavy.

One of the many lectures in Psychology.



A familiar look at Anatomy and Physiology lecture.

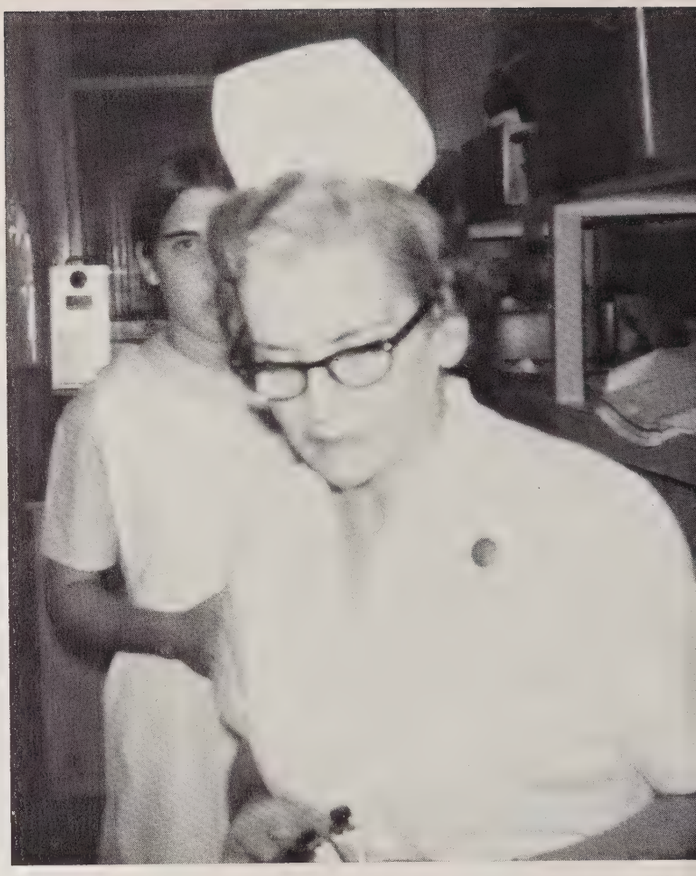


Dr. Miller
Anatomy & Physiology

A one last run through of the bones before the test is seen here with these students in anatomy lab.

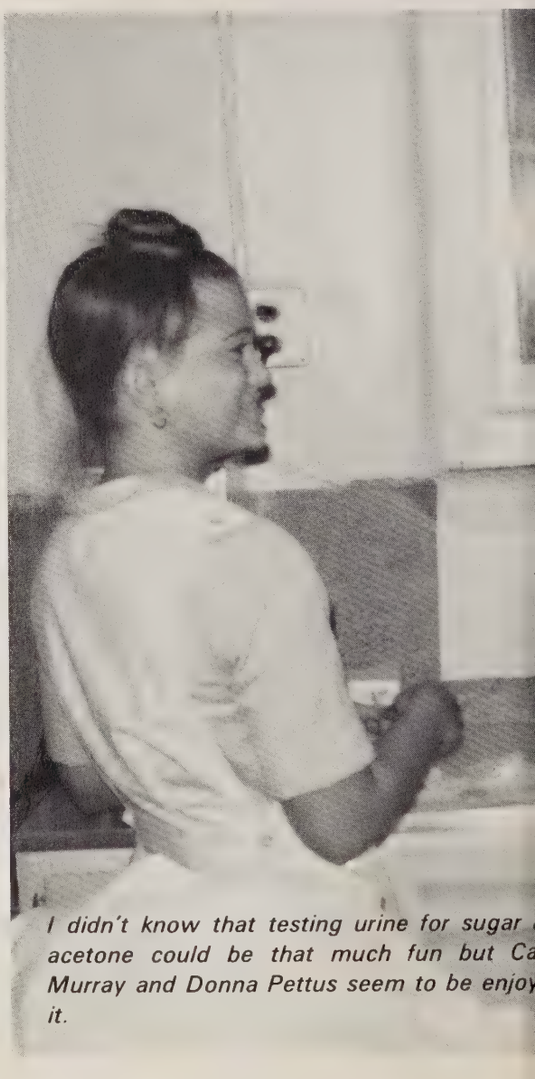
FUNDAMENTALS

Remember all of those funny skits at the first of the year? Well . . . the freshmen have finally caught on. The really funny thing is that there was no exaggeration. Have you ever given an enema with a douche tip? Ask Mrs. Anderson if she knows the difference? What happens when you are tightening a draw sheet of an occupied bed and suddenly find it unoccupied? You turn around and listen to Mrs. Pierce say, "You're exposing the patient!" You think that's bad, wait until Mrs. Rogers corners you in the conference room and tells you that the thermometer you just put in Mr. Jones' mouth was a rectal thermometer. And on your first interview with a patient, you get one with laryngitis. "Gee Ms. Lipscomb, you never taught us sign language in communications!" Dear Ms. Reinhart — was that a Jew or Catholic that I just served roast beef and coffee to for lunch? Believe it or not, the poor freshmen came across all of this in Fundamentals 110 . . . But the best is yet to come!

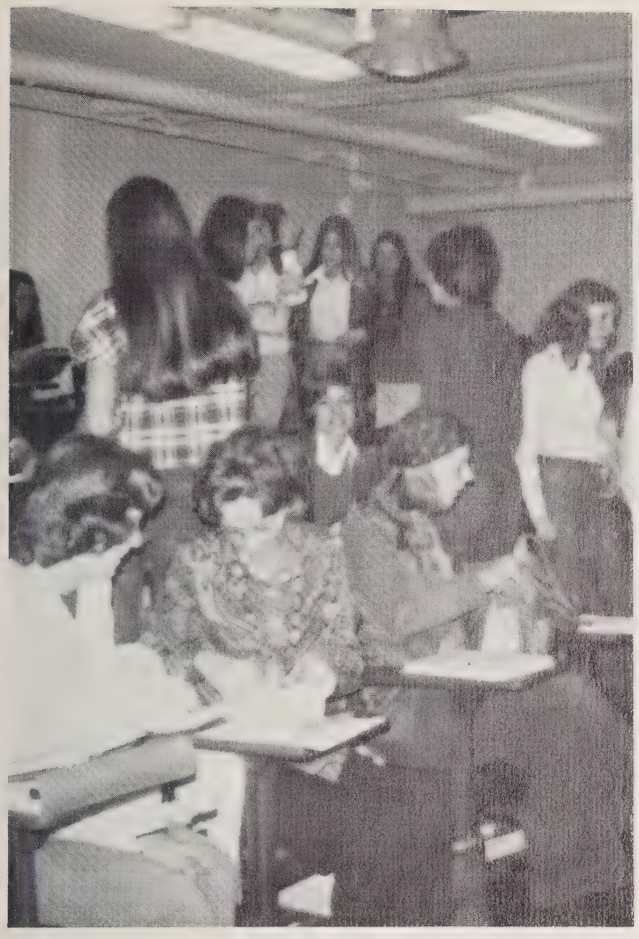


Mrs. Pierce demonstrates her dedication by assisting Sheila Salmon to secure equipment for a procedure.

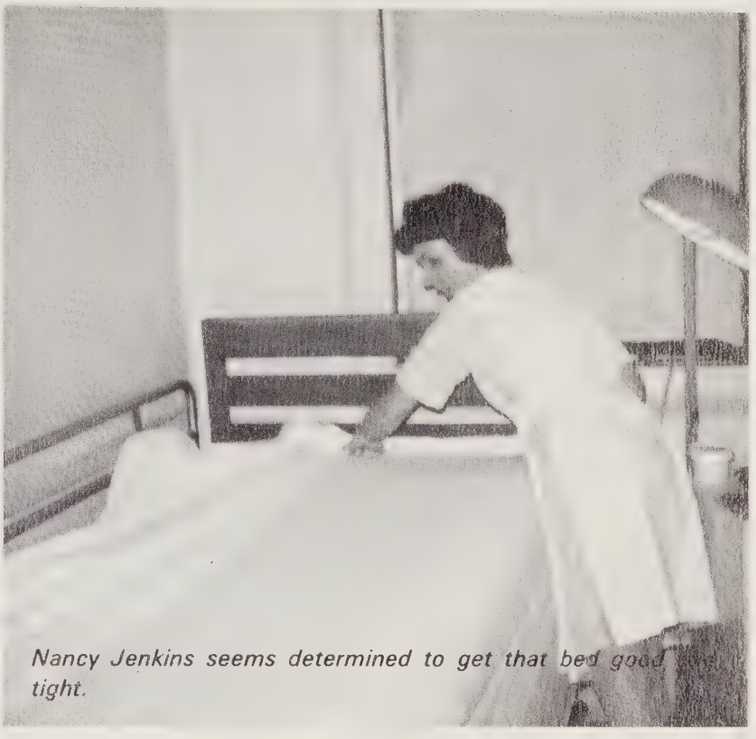
When giving her first medications Luanne Mahannah receives help from Mrs. Anderson.



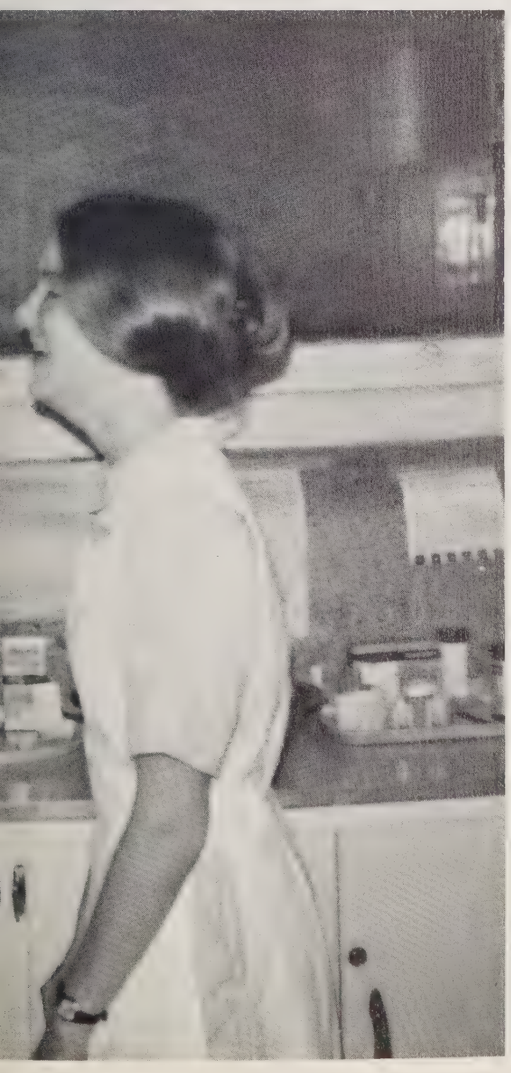
I didn't know that testing urine for sugar a acetone could be that much fun but Ca Murray and Donna Pettus seem to be enjoy it.

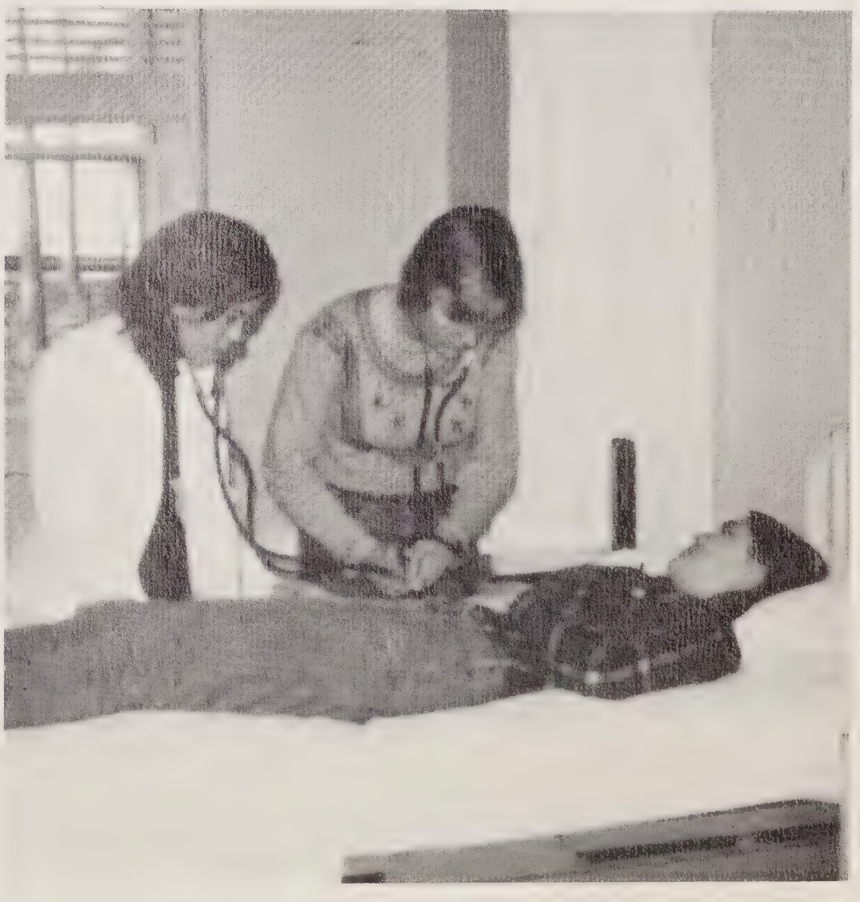


Breaktime during fundamentals class.



Nancy Jenkins seems determined to get that bed good and tight.





Donna Denesuk shows how helpful a fellow student such as Sheila Salmon can be especially when Mrs. Lipscomb is listening in.

Carol Norton demonstrates one of the many responsibilities of a student nurse — passing out lunch trays.

When rotating through the Recovery Room Pam Thacker takes a moment out of the busy schedule to reassure her patient.

MEDICAL-SURGICAL NURSING II

Medical-Surgical Nursing II is:

— a 22 week course consisting of classes, ward rotations, OR experiences, and tests.

— the study of major body systems — the normal versus the abnormal.

— a combination of all nursing disciplines.

— a never ending process of learning and relearning.

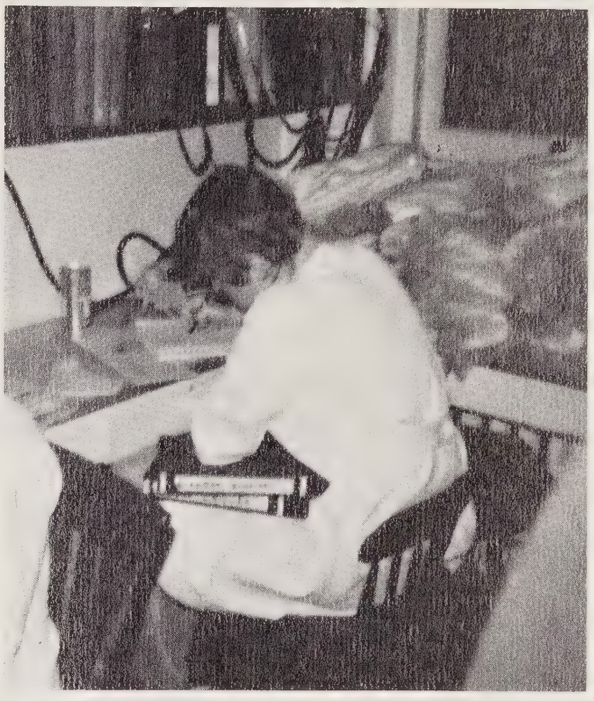
— learning to say "I do not know," but "I will find out."

— asking yourself, "Will I ever know enough?", and answering with "No, you will not."

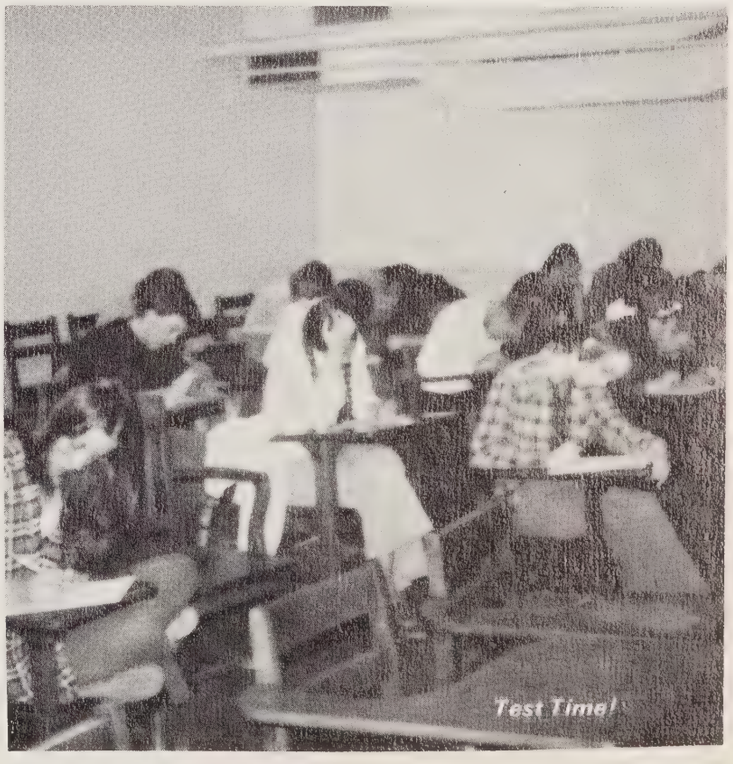
— most of all hard work, that in return gives you much needed knowledge for your professional growth, a worthwhile feeling and, hopefully, a smiling patient.

Mrs. Holloway and Edith Johnson pause in the hall to ask questions and to get questions answered.

Sheila Morris seems to be working diligently at getting her assignment for the next day.

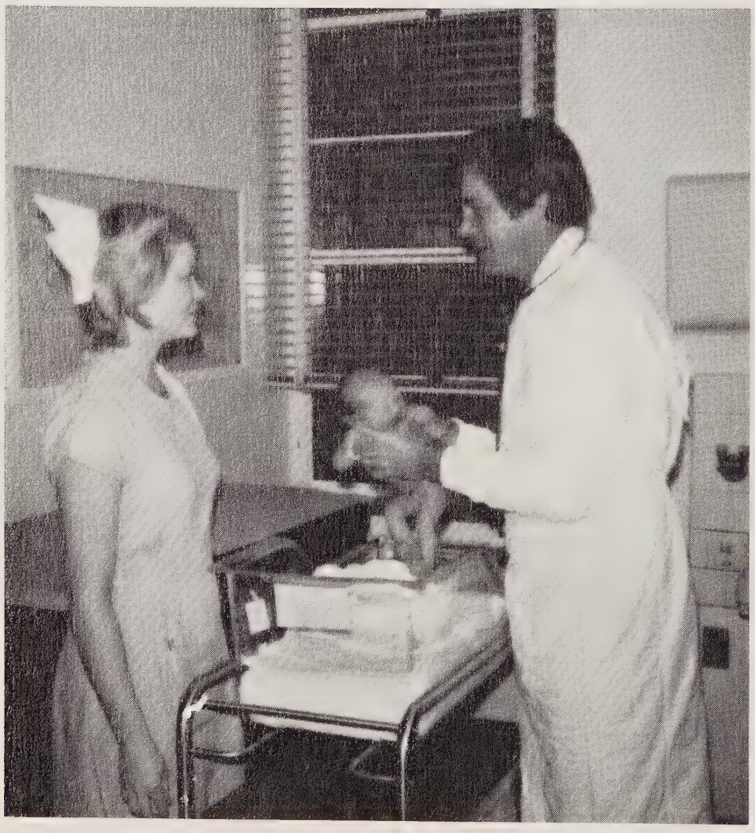


Testing urine for specific gravity seems to be what's going on here with Edith Johnson and Jeneverete Howard.



OBSTETRICS

Discussing the happenings of the past week seems to be the topic of conference time.



Discussing an examination with Dr. Rouse, leaves Pam Atkins speechless.

Mrs. Carroll doesn't seem to be too pleased. Did we interrupt something?

A very familiar [illegible] on Friday [illegible]king tests!

As part of the work in the newborn nursery, Kim Merringer is giving the mothers on Ward O a class on how to prepare the baby's formula.

Maternity nursing under Anne Carroll . . . What can you say? A nutrition work sheet and study. A word list to define. A tremendous drug card list, 3 bibs a week, not to mention the case study and all the process recordings that go along with it. A fabulous time in labor and delivery with Mrs. Gould, who knows her stuff. Tests that only come once a week. Most of all, maternity nursing is learning about the beautiful process of human reproduction.

Even post-clinical conference can be fun — sometimes.

A new arrival in OB, but no it's not a new baby but a new instructor, Mrs. Eleanor Gould.

PEDIATRICS

At CP Hospital Cynthia Phelps and Pam Tingen play games with the children.

This baby seems to be the perfect fit for Gene Galyean's arms.

A winning smile and loving touch from Mrs. Fuller may help to sooth a little of the pain.

While at Cerebral Palsy Hospital, Pam Tingen kneels down to see what this little fellow has to say.

While at Child Care Center Nancy Bigelow is trying to persuade the little girl to let her take her temperature.

Having a story read by Julia Upchurch and Cheryl Andrews makes nursery school a little better.

PEDIATRICS IS —

— children.

— eleven weeks of work, worry, and wonder.

— nursery school where you watch children grow and learn to play a lot of games.

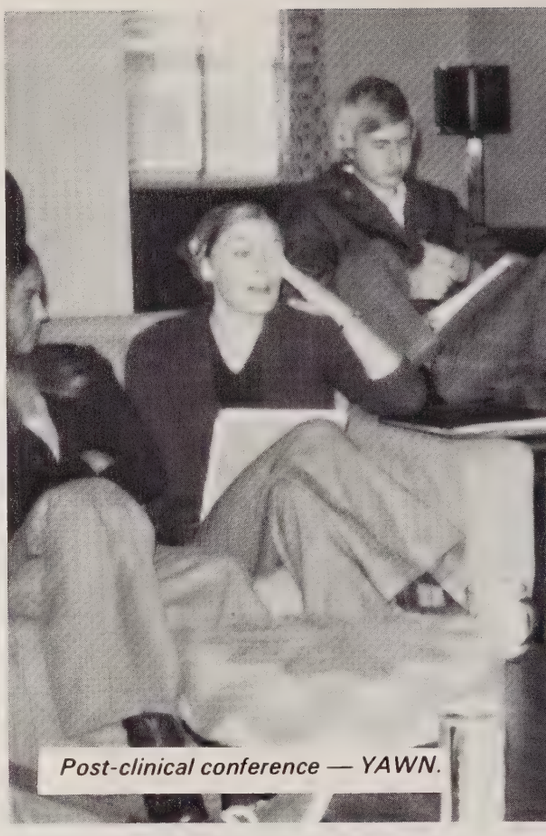
— working at the Child Care Center and watching Dr. Rouse change shirts.

— the Intensive Care Nursery where Mrs. Holloway shows her real self.

— Ward D — giving care to sick children and sometimes becoming deeply involved.

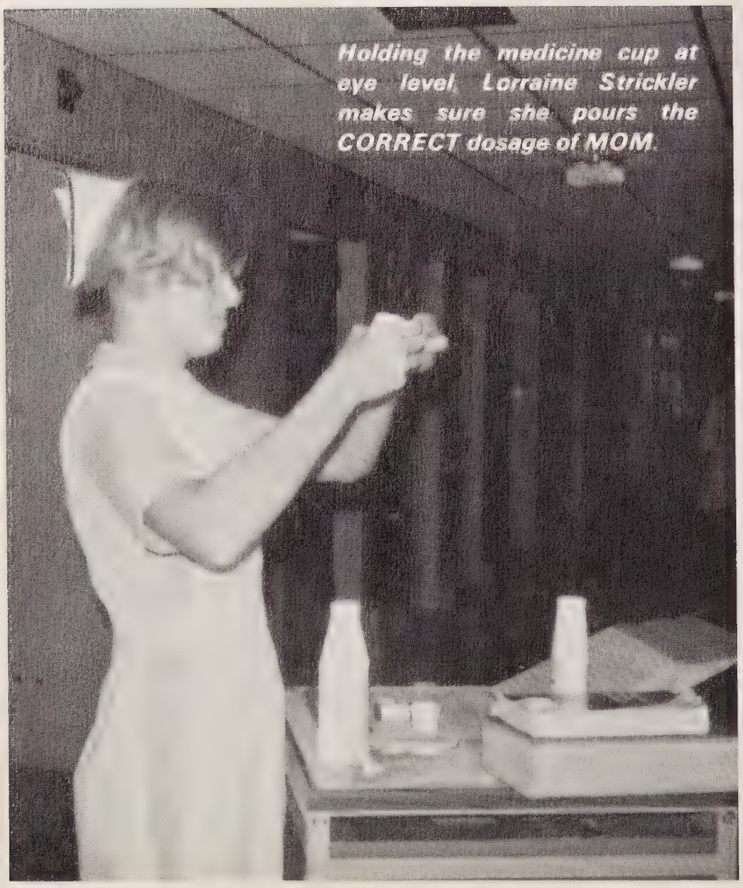
— four hours a day of class watching Mrs. Fuller talk with her hands.

Mrs. McCain and June Lane ...g that final evaluation!



Post-clinical conference — YAWN.

LEADERSHIP



Holding the medicine cup at eye level, Lorraine Strickler makes sure she pours the CORRECT dosage of MOM.

Nursing 310 or Leadership is an eleven week course that is taken during the senior year. It involves the learning of team nursing including its advantages and disadvantages. The philosophy of team nursing is that nursing and all its goals are achieved by all the staff working together. The main objective of team nursing is of course, better individualized patient care. In learning to become an efficient and effective leader, the student must accept the responsibility of team leader and of medication nurse. On alternate weeks when the student is team leader she is responsible for assigning staff to patients, taking off doctors orders, making patient rounds and overall working closely with the head nurse's supervision in assuring better patient care. As medication nurse, the student is surrounded with the task of maintaining all IV's, giving all patient medications for her team as safely as possible, and charting medications as given.

The clinical area is challenging for the senior student since she is faced with more responsibility than ever beofre. During the eleven weeks she evolves from a shy and scared student to a responsible and respected leader. Thus, in becoming a professional nurse, this experience is necessary and beneficial to each senior student.

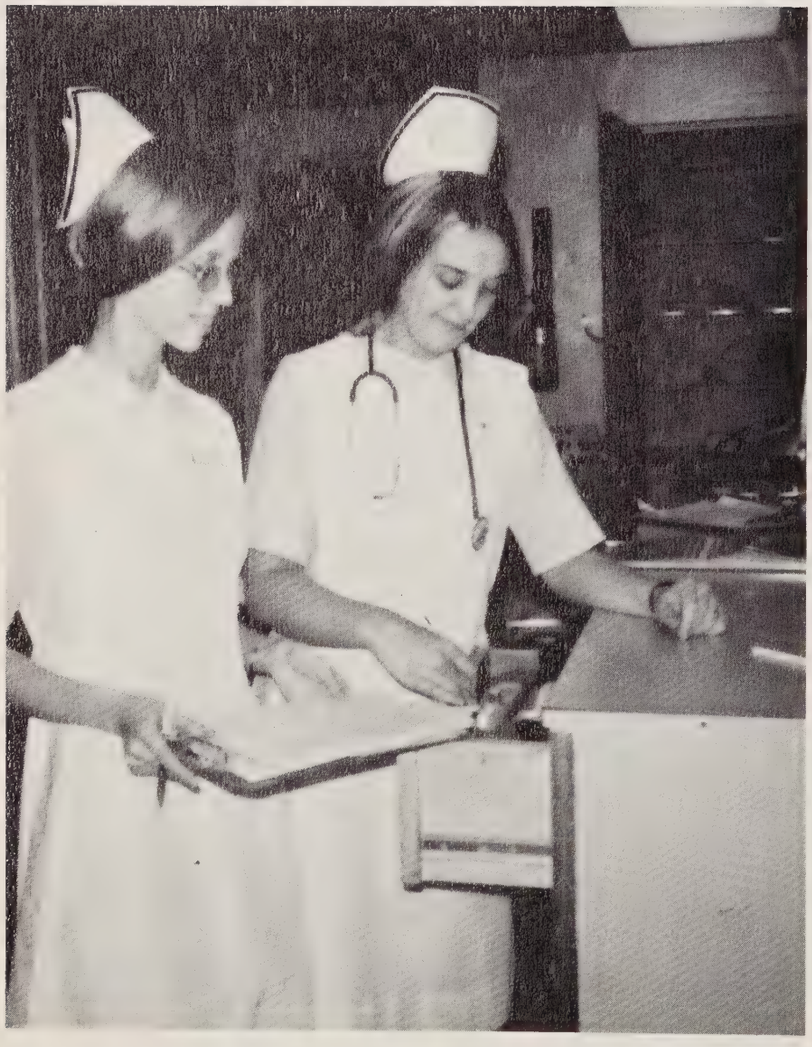
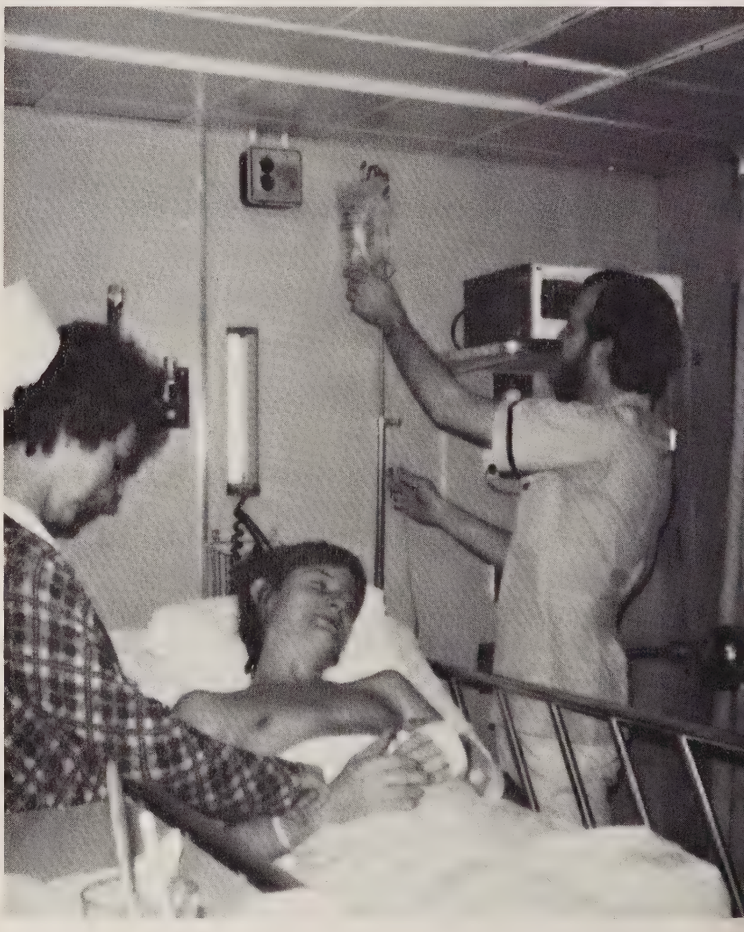
As team leader Donna Humble checks off new doctor's orders.

Reporting off to a tape recorder! Yes, this is one of the new ideas being tried on Ward R as demonstrated by Van Umstead.

MEDICAL-SURGICAL NURSING

During the senior year of our nursing education we take an eleven week course of medical-surgical nursing. This course includes rotation in the Emergency Room and Intensive Care Units. We found this part of the course very interesting and beneficial. We encountered crucial and life-threatening situations while working in these clinical areas of the hospital. When we were not in the special units we cared for critical and terminal patients on the wards. In this, we learned to deal with death, ourselves, and with our patients. Many times we were faced with critical decisions which affected our patient's lives.



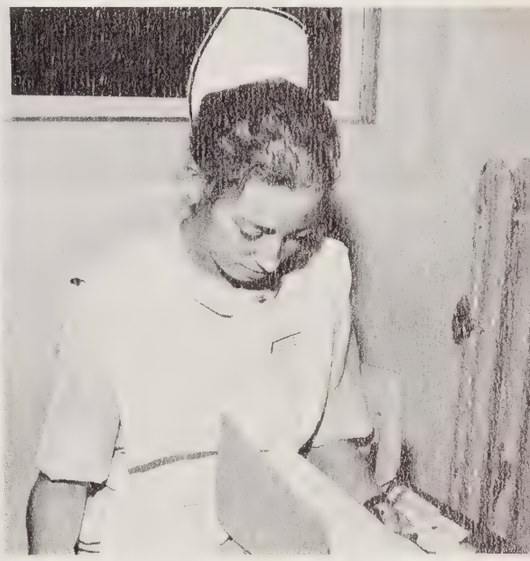


Working in the Medical Intensive Care Unit, Les Chalmers regulates an IV as part of his daily activities.

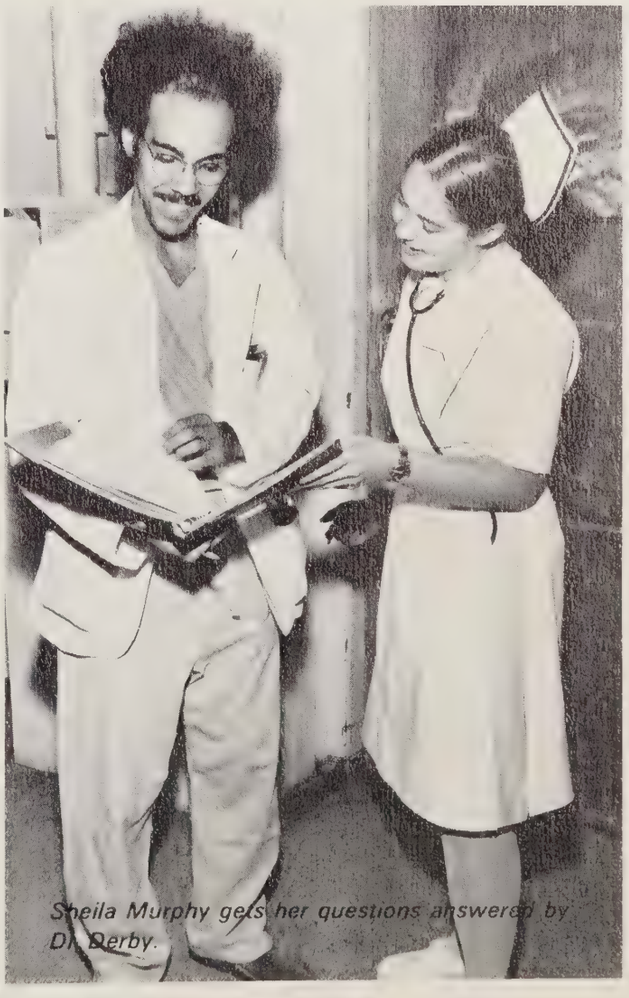
In the Surgical Intensive Care Unit Cathye Williams and Lana Collins check over the equipment.

...sometimes unpleasant, restraints maybe necessary ...tion accomplished in the Emergency Room. Assisting ... Dottie ... Fisher, Mike Keaton and Nancy Yates.

Having finished her charting, Mary Deering looks over her patient's lab reports.



The job of chec... Code 5 cart on W... is undertaken by ... Presnell and Pam Dickens.



Sheila Murphy gets her questions answered by Dr. Derby.

PSYCHIATRY

Leaving Watts to go to John Umstead Hospital for our psychiatric training was very difficult for many of us. This field was totally different from anything that we had experienced before.

The first few weeks of the course we spent learning about ourselves. This included facing up to our own fears and limitations. As time passed we learned to deal with our own emotions and most of our patients, but those process recordings seemed never ending! After a while most either loved or hated their experience at Butner but none can easily forget it.

Dear Diary,
I've meant to write you for the past three years but school has kept me busy, very busy. Many nights I wanted to tell you how hopeless it all seemed and yet how happy I was. I've made a lot of friends who mean a great deal to me. Thanks for sending Dotty Jo to take your place. Room mates are priceless gifts I have learned. Diary, time is running short but I promise I'll keep in touch.

Love is very patient and kind, never jealous or envious, never boastful or proud, never haughty or selfish or rude. Love does not demand its own way. It is not irritable or touchy. It does not hold grudges and will hardly notice when others do it wrong. It is never glad about injustice, but rejoices when truth wins out. If you love someone you will be loyal to him no matter what the cost. You will always believe in him.

We cannot tell what may happen to us in the strange medley of life. But we can decide what happens in us, how we can take it, what really counts in the end. How to take the raw stuff of life and make it a thing of worth and beauty, that is the test of living. Life is an adventure of faith, if we are to be victors over it, not victims of it. Without faith we cannot really live.

Dear Friends,
It seems so hard to believe that just three short years ago we were beginning a career we doubted and believe it or not, we made it. We've gone through a lot, bad and good. It's useless to try to list the experiences, they are endless. I appreciate the friendship from each of you. I know each of you has greatly enriched my life in some way.

Brief were my days among you, and briefer still the words I have spoken. Laughter is a gift I have given you. I gave it willingly. Now realizing that my dream has come true, I must leave. When we started school here we were told that we would learn to be a nurse. As time went on we learned to answer the question "what are you?" with "a nurse." When we leave here we all hope we will each leave, a nurse. In three years we have managed to forget what our title should be — a person. Until we can each learn to be a person, we can never, successfully be anything else.

TO EACH HIS OWN

Enjoying her free time, Cindy Rainey sips on a Tab an reads the news.

With people coming here from all across our nation from California to Florida and from all regions of North Carolina, Hendersonville in the mountains to Morehead City on the coast, we have students with all types of interests and hobbies. Some of the many different interests include babysitting for Dr. Currie, participating in sports such as volleyball, basketball, and tennis. Then for some marriage is a big interest both for those already married and those who are still looking. Parties are another major interest around Watts. Fraternity houses, upstairs at the Ivey Room, Charlie Goodnights, the Hilton and the Elks Lodge are just a few of the places frequented by Watts students. Many of us even try our hand at growing plants. This however is sometimes quite discouraging in our 110° dorm, but we keep on trying. There are many more interests that we have failed to mention or picture, some very sensible and others quite strange but — to each his own . . .

Peggy West and Sheila Murphy demonstrate one of the favorite interests around here — watching the Young and Restless.

Eating is one interest that everybody seems to enjoy.

TREE TRIMMING

There's a little more to getting a tree for Christmas than meets the eye, especially this tree for Hill House living room. First you have to decide where you're going to get the tree. That's easy. Use the one we had at the Christmas Dance. Secondly there's the matter of transporting the tree. Oh that's easy too. Get someone who has a big car and is willing to help. So here we all go heading for the Christmas tree at the Elks Lodge. We get there and what do we find but that we needed a two-ton truck to haul the tree. It is bigger than we imagined. Has it grown since the dance? We figure and we ponder about how to get this enormous tree back to Watts in a mediocre sized Impala. We decide it can't be done, so the moving of the tree is postponed until the next day when we can get a truck.

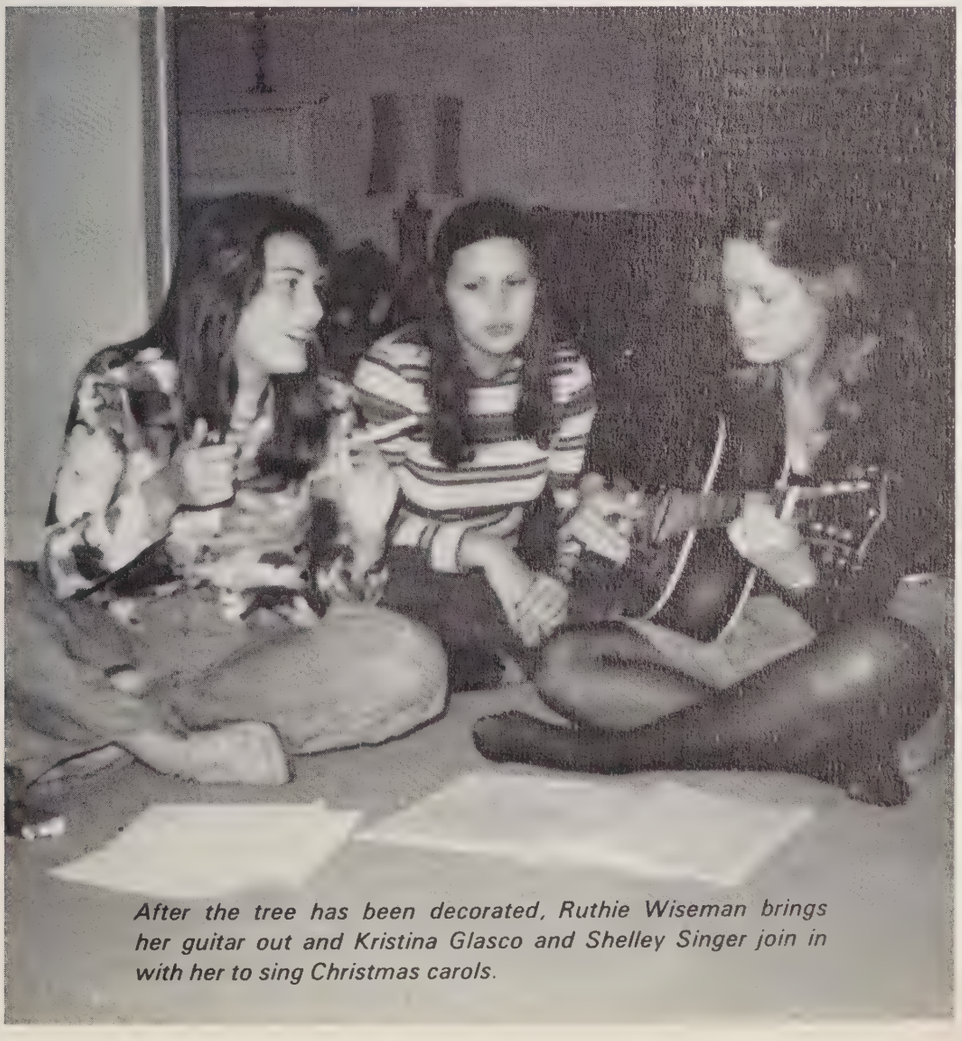
Well we get the tree unloaded at Watts and have to cut it in half. It is soon mounted on a stand and is ready for decorating. The boxes of Christmas decorations are hauled out and everyone begins to join in the fun of decorating our Christmas tree. After it is decorated we all sit down and munch on freshly popped popcorn and Koolaid. In the meantime someone has pulled out a guitar and is strumming a few chords of Christmas carols and everyone joins in singing — a typical Christmas at Watts.

Popping the 2 pounds of popcorn for the tree decorators can be quite a chore, as Cathy Martin and Janice Chamelin seem to have found out.

After the tree has been set up, Sharon Stewart gets out the vacuum cleaner and gets to work picking up those needles.

Getting the lights on the tree is the first job and the hardest when trimming the Christmas tree.

More students gather to add their final touches to the tree.



After the tree has been decorated, Ruthie Wiseman brings her guitar out and Kristina Glasco and Shelley Singer join in with her to sing Christmas carols.

As Sheila Murphy hands out the ornaments she inspects each one individually.

CHRISTMAS CAROLING AND A VISIT FROM SANTA CLAUSE

Lead by Florence Nightingale (Peggy West), we headed for the halls of the hospital to sing Christmas carols in the hopes of bringing a little Christmas spirit to the patients and staff. Carrying lighted candles, we proceeded to carol throughout the hospital. At times we found oursleves moving so slowly that we wondered if the candles would burn out before we finished. At other times we had to almost run down the hall to keep up with the group. After all the wards had finally been covered we filed out the front of the hospital to stand around the tree in the circle to sing a few more songs.

It was then time to go back to Hill House to see Santa Claus and to get the gifts that had been placed under the tree by the students. Santa Claus and his helper soon showed up and were greeted with a big round of applause. Plowing his way through the crowd, Santa made it to the tree and began flinging out the presents, with some help from his assistant, Dr. Meyer. When the gifts were distributed, Santa (Dr. Area) was presented with a gift from the student body. He then left us with a hardy Ho! Ho! Ho!

As part of her duties as President of the student body, Peggy West dresses as Florence Nightingale to lead us in Christmas caroling.

Santa and his helper seem to enjoy their talk with Van Umstead.

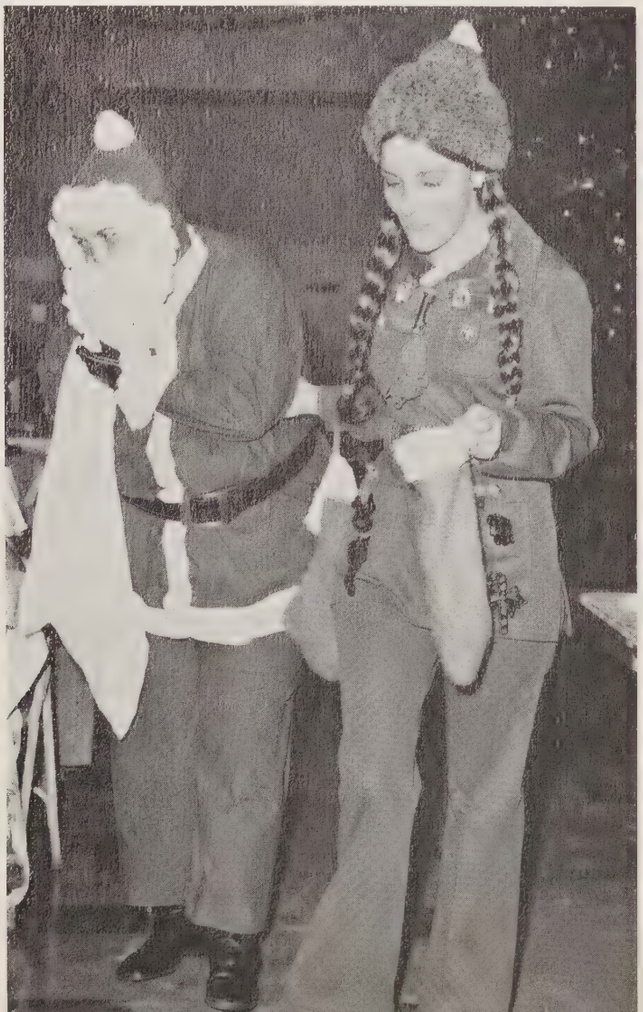
Karen Williams, Janice Chamelin and Joanna Southern show off the gifts that Santa gave them.

CHRISTMAS DANCE

On December 5, 1975, members of the junior class gathered at the Elks Lodge to put together the decorations for the evenings dance. They began by setting up the giant Christmas tree. They added holly, pine cones, and candles for the tables, then, topped it all off with moons, stars and mistletoe dangling from the ceiling. Later that evening after everyone had arrived, the real party began. Around nine o'clock the Armageddon Band began to play. It took a while before anyone would take the initiative to begin dancing, but it soon got underway with a little Bumping and Hustling. For those who weren't dancing there was plenty of food and drink furnished by the freshmen.

While the band takes a break, everyone takes time out to rest their feet.

Dressed as Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, Pam Tingen and Carol Norton pass out candy canes.



The Armageddon Band

About mid-way through the evening the party was honored with a surprise from the Juniors. The surprise was none other than Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus. They made their rounds about the tables handing out candy canes to everyone.

As the night wore on couples slowly drifted home. At about one o'clock Armageddon ended the evening with one last song which brought the dance to a close with many having had a good time.

ANNIE

The presentation of Annie has been a tradition at Watts since 1943. It was in this year that a senior student won Annie at the State Fair. This senior having no roommate of her own, chose to share Annie by passing her on after her graduation to the two closest roommates from the up-coming Senior class. Since that first presentation, Annie has become a symbol of congeniality and understanding between two chosen roommates. This year, Julie Bailey and Sharon Stewart had the honor of accepting the presentation of Annie.

THE GIFT OF FRIENDSHIP

FRIENDSHIP is a PRICELESS GIFT that cannot be bought or sold,
But its value is far greater than a mountain made of gold —
For gold is cold and lifeless,
it can neither see nor hear,
And in the time of trouble
it is powerless to cheer —
It has no ears to listen,
no heart to understand,
It cannot bring you comfort or reach out a helping hand —
So when you ask
God for a GIFT,
be thankful if HE sends
Not diamonds, pearls or riches, but the love of real true friends.

Helen Steiner Rice

Having just received Annie, Julie Bailey and Sharon Stewart pose for a picture with her.

Annie was an honor and a great surprise, although there were other roommates who were just as deserving. We thank the class for allowing Annie to dwell with us for a year. We will always cherish the memories of living together and of sharing Annie.

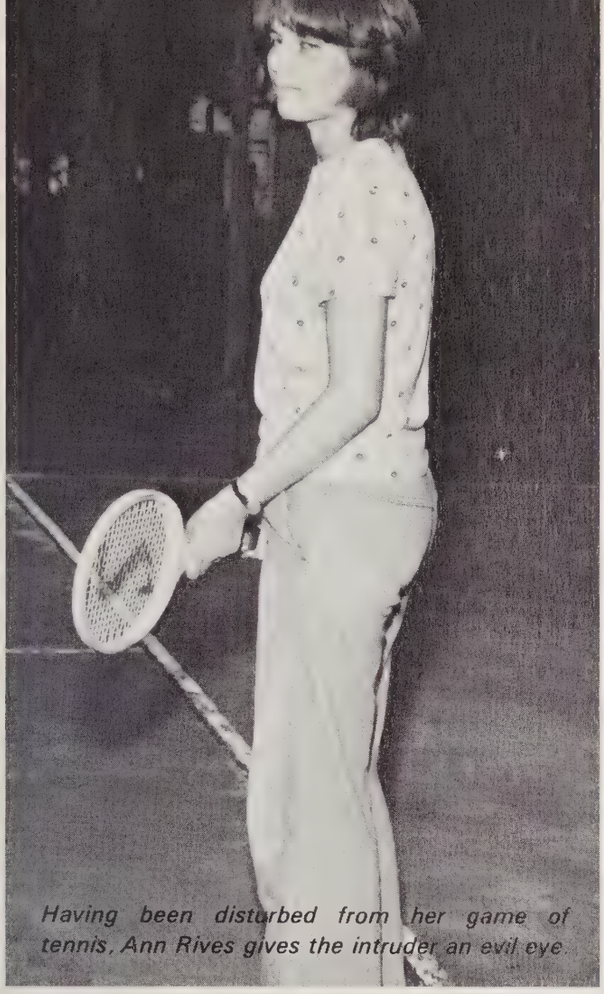
EVERYTHING IS BEAUTIFUL IN IT'S OWN WAY

It's been said that everyone needs their beauty sleep. Betsy Johnson seems to be giving this a try.

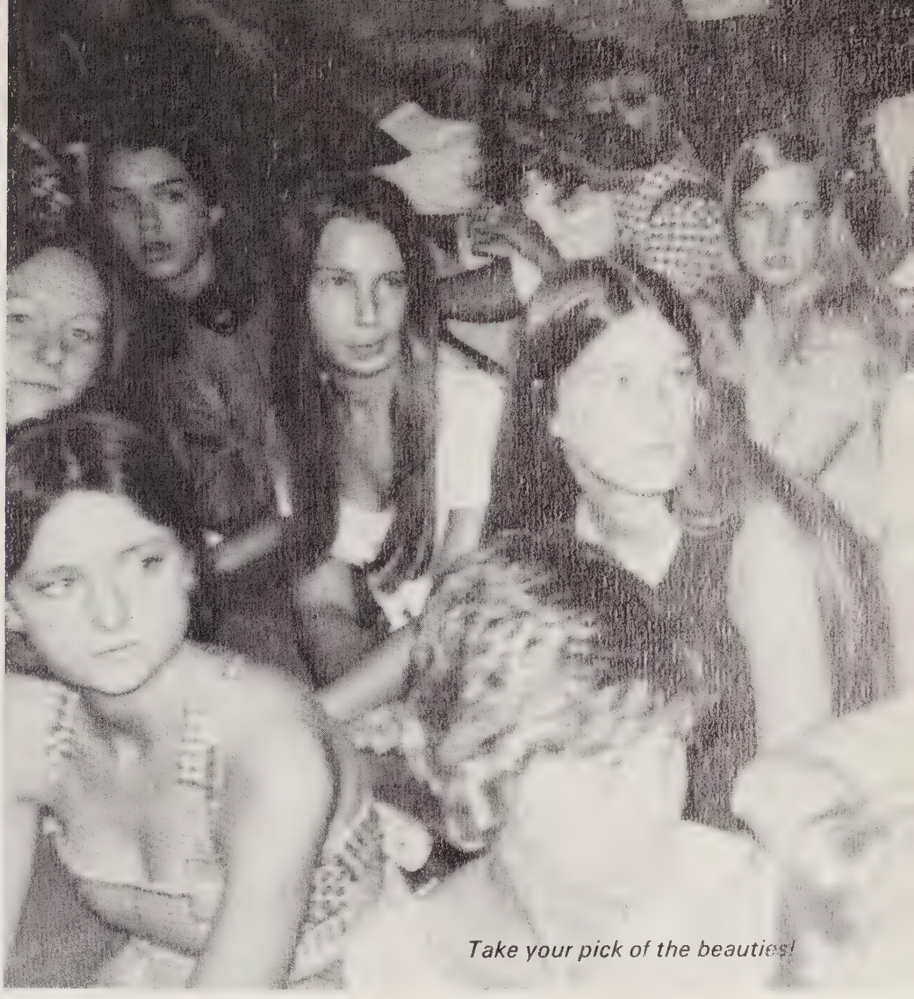
Kay Chandler seems surprised when she is caught off guard.

Even Peggy West's own messy room has a spark of originality which in turn makes it unique.

...on mothering ... Warren and daughter.



Having been disturbed from her game of tennis, Ann Rives gives the intruder an evil eye.



Take your pick of the beauties!

Each person has their own thoughts on what is beautiful.

To a freshman — Capping is beautiful.

To a junior — Black Banding is beautiful.

To a senior — Graduation is beautiful.

While all may not agree on specifics we do agree that everything is beautiful in it's own way.

Looking like she stepped out of fantasy land, Terri Duke is ready for the costume party at the Halloween mixer.

CAPPING

Tonight we reached our first plateau as nursing students. In the excitement of it all, we lined ourselves three-fold with each of us carrying a candle. As we looked at our upper classmates and faculty on either side of us, we realized that this was "our" time for recognition. Although we each share the common bond of having one year down, we realize that we still have a two year struggle ahead.

Although the ceremony was short, the memories are forever.

Nervously standing in line, Donna Rogers, Sheila Salmon, Shelly Singer, and Diane Smith wait to be capped.

After five months of hard work, the freshmen complete their uniforms.

Many long hours were spent in Hill House for ALL those nursing courses.

Connie Wingert gets caught snitching money from her piggy bank.

Editor Mary Yonts and freshman representative Terri Duke seem to be discussing more than a possible layout.

With only the few that actually worked on this book, we feel that we have put together a yearbook you can be proud of. We think that the end product was well worth the hard work that it took to put it together and we hope you enjoy it now and in the years to come. I would like to give special thanks to Clara Butler and Nina Vincent for their talents which we were able to utilize. Appreciation also goes to Public Relations, Ruth Clemens and Ruth Newberg for their helpfulness and generosity. We would also like to thank John Elkins for his photography and all the others who added in their helpful hints.

So take your book and hope you enjoy it.

Miss Blackwood,
You have made things much nicer for me in the six months I've been at Watts. I want to thank you for being so kind and considerate. You are always ready to listen and offer an encouraging word.
I wish you the best of everything life has to offer.

Love.

Dear Nanie,
It has been quite a pleasure getting to know you and working with you. I will certainly miss seeing your smiling face around this hospital. Sometime when I'm driving the old SL I'll just stop in, have a talk, and laugh for awhile. Be sweet.

Love you,

GERALD MAC STAHL

Gerald Mac Stahl, retired director of pharmacy services at Durham County General Hospital, died Tuesday.

Stahl, 68, was a resident of Welcome Drive. He had 33 years of service with Durham County General Hospital and the former Watts Hospital. After retiring, he was adjunct professor of pharmacy practice and coordinator of pharmacy clerkships in the School of Pharmacy at Campbell University.

Stahl was a native of Nurenburg, Germany, and immigrated to the United States in 1946. He graduated from the School of Pharmacy of the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond, Va., and later obtained a graduate degree in hospital pharmacy from the University of Tennessee in Memphis.

Stahl was a member of the American Society of Hospital Pharmacists, American Pharmaceutical Association, N.C. Society of Hospital Pharmacists, N.C. Pharmaceutial Association, Durham-Orange County Pharmaceutical Association and Rho Chi, the pharmaceutical honorary society. He was active in the Durham Rotary Club and was a member of Beth El Synagogue.

The funeral will be conducted at 10:30 a.m. today in the Howerton & Bryan Funeral Home chapel by Rabbi Steven Sager. Burial will be in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Richmond.

Stahl is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Stahl; a daughter, Ms. Vivian Stahl of North Potomac, Md.; a son, Peter Stahl of North Windham, Conn.; a brother, Rudy J. Stahl of Richmond; and two grandsons.

Memorial contributions may be made to Duke Medical Center Cancer Patient Support Program, Durham Community Kitchen or Beth El Synagogue.

Mrs. Gerald Stahl lives in Maryland.

Back to school for RN

Frances H. Ragan graduated May 13 from the NC Central School of Nursing with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing, something to be proud of. But even more so, this graduation comes after working since 1952 as a RN, and also raising a family.

There was much that was very fascinating about school, Ragan said, and there was a different outlook and grasp because she was an older student. 'It was wonderful to get the new subjects such as molecular biology as well as the new technologies in nursing."

I wish you all the happiness in the world
